

Harry L. Carpenter And Mrs. Rose C. Neid Are Quietly Wedded

Mrs. Rose Constance Neid and Harry L. Carpenter, a well-known couple of Conneltsville, were quietly married Saturday evening at 10:30 o'clock in the parsonage of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Pittsburg street. Rev. Dr. Bennett W. Hutchins officiated. There were no attendants. The wedding is one of much interest to Conneltsville society. The bride is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Callaghan of Conneltsville and is highly accomplished. She is a student of prominence and studied under well known musical instructors of New York. Mr. Carpenter is one of Conneltsville's leading business men, being general manager and treasurer of the Tri-State Candy Company. He is a son of Mrs. L. M. Carpenter of Meadville, Pa., and Mrs. Carpenter left this morning for a motor trip to Detroit, Mich. On their return they will be at home in South Pittsburg street.

Mrs. Leiberger Hostess.
Mrs. Robert M. Leiberger was hostess at a charming bridge party yesterday afternoon at her home in East Cedar avenue in honor of Mrs. Louis Webster of West Apple street. Four tables were called into play and prizes were awarded Mrs. J. Clyde Whiteley, Mrs. Charles C. Mitchell, Mrs. Joseph Buttermore and Mrs. William R. Scott. Spilling flowers were used in decorating. At the conclusion of the game a delicious luncheon was served. Mrs. Leiberger's Collins of Uniontown was an out of town guest.

Joseph Dixon to Graduate.
Joseph Dixon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dixon of East Crawford avenue, will graduate next week from the University of West Virginia, Morgantown.

Viltsack-Kelly.
Miss Virginia Helen Viltsack, daughter of Mrs. Leopold Viltsack of Pittsburg, and John C. R. Kelly, son of Mr. Edward Kelly also of Pittsburg, were married Thursday morning in St. Paul's Cathedral. A reception at the Viltsack home followed the ceremony. The bride is known among Conneltsville's younger set, having frequently been the guest of Miss Angela Stander, formerly of this city, but now of New York.

Light Bearers to Picnic.
The Light Bearers of the First Presbyterian Church will hold a picnic Saturday afternoon at Davidson's grove. The members are requested to meet at Davidson avenue at 1 o'clock. In case of rain an indoor picnic will be held in the basement of the church.

Memorial Service for Mrs. Percy.
A brief memorial service for Mrs. J. G. Percy, president of the society for many years, was held in connection with a business meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Protestant Church held yesterday afternoon in the church. Mrs. McClintock presided. A service was composed of Mrs. J. E. Lamberton, Mrs. Robert Boyd and Miss Martha Babbage was appointed to draw up resolutions of respect for Mrs. Percy.

Bible Class Organized.
A Bible class, with twenty-two charter members, was organized last night by the men of the Greenwood Methodist Episcopal Church. Officers were elected as follows: President, W. H. Thomas; vice-president, James McClellan; secretary, A. W. Hurt; treasurer, H. L. Piersol; teacher, Rev. C. H. Richmond; assistant, W. H. Thomas. Business meetings will be held on the first Monday night of each month.

Miss Digby Weds.
Mr. and Mrs. George Taber Digby of Wheeling, W. Va., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Virginia Digby and Ernest Wilson Cline, solemnized last evening in St. Luke's Protestant Episcopal Church in Wheeling. Rev. Dr. Jacob Brittingham, the pastor, officiated, and only the immediate members of the two families witnessed the ceremony. The wedding is one of interest here, the bride having frequently visited at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cecil of South Conneltsville. Mrs. Cline is a talented musician and is a regular member of the younger set of Wheeling. She is a soloist in St. Luke's Protestant Episcopal Church and also director of the choir. Mr. Cline is a well-known architect of Wheeling and a veteran of the World War. On their return from a honeymoon trip to New York and other eastern cities, Mr. and Mrs. Cline will be at home for the present at the residence of the bride's parents, 61 Ohio street, Wheeling.

Form Social Club.
On Thursday evening a few men of the Trinity Episcopal Church met at the parish house and formed what is to be known as the Form Social Club. The first affair of the club will be given on next Tuesday evening when there will be a smoker and a general social time to which all men of the parish and their friends outside have a most hearty invitation.

Afternoon at Bridge.
Mrs. J. Clyde Whiteley, Mrs. J. L. Evans and Mrs. Alex B. Hood entertained the Friday afternoon Bridge Club this afternoon at Mrs. Whiteley's home in East Washington avenue. Delightful refreshments were served at the close of the games.

Miss Mary Caroline Solson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Solson, is among a class of 121 young women who will receive diplomas on June 1 and is one of the graduates of the biology class. She has been elected an instructor in that subject at the college next year and was honored by being awarded a scholarship at the Marine Biological Laboratory at Woods Hole, Mass., during the summer months.

Entertainers for Sisters.
A yellow and lavender color scheme, with roses forming the decorations throughout the house, prevailed at an attractively appointed bridge party of three tables given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Louis P. McCormick at her home in Vine street in honor of her sisters, Miss Harry Stout of Polton, Pa., and Mrs. Philip Thompson of New York. Mrs. S. R. Goldsmith won the head prize and Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Stout were awarded the guest prizes. Following the games luncheon was served.

Married at Cumberland.
The following announcement relative to Miss Mabel Frances Whitlock and A. E. Ueber, whose marriage at Greensburg Wednesday was published in The Courier yesterday, was made today, a second ceremony taking place at Cumberland, Md.: Miss Mabel Frances Whitlock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Whitlock of Vine street, and Arthur Edwin Ueber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Ueber of Grove City, were quietly married Thursday afternoon at the parsonage of Rev. Moffat at Cumberland, Md. The bride is a graduate of Conneltsville High School and for the past two years has been bookkeeper for Mrs. Sellers. The groom is a graduate of the 1920 class of Grove City College. For the past two years he has been a member of the high school faculty. Mr. and Mrs. Ueber will go to Grove City to attend the annual commencement exercises of Grove City College and then will take an extended trip to the Great Lakes.

Shower for Bride.
Mrs. Harry G. Goughenour, a recent bride, was tendered a miscellaneous supper Wednesday night at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelia Jaynes at Wheeler by a number of her friends. About twenty guests were present and spent the evening at various amusements. Delightful refreshments were served. The bride received a number of pretty and useful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Goughenour left yesterday for Niles, O., to reside.

Kellogg's Bran is nature's own relief from constipation!

You must not take chances with constipation when nature tells you that nine-tenths of all sickness can be traced to it. You must get permanent relief by your mother's constipation out of your system.

Realize that pills and cathartics, at best, can only afford temporary relief, while they are irritating to the delicate intestinal tract.
Now—compare the action of these pills and cathartics with the natural and wholesome effect of Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbed. Science knows of no such wonderful sweet, cleansing and purifier of the bowels as Kellogg's Bran, yet it is simply nature's food. Bran's effect is certain and relief permanent. It is at least 100 times more effective than any laxative medicine.

Kephart Hearing Adjourned; Lewis Has 'New Leads'

Methods of keeping the treasury books relating to deposits of public money in banks and making up the monthly statements where the money was held were some hints for audit.

The book transfers, upon which the certified accountants making the inquiry were testified by one clerk in charge of books to have been made in the direction of Klopff, who was said to have said they were ordered by "the boss." And C. Steel, the clerk testifying, said in answer to a direct question that "the boss" was Kephart, whose four-year term as treasurer of the city ended on May 1, 1921.

Deputy Attorney General Hull conducted the examination.
Galloway asked few questions, but Hull conducted a prolonged technical examination of Steel, going into details of transactions into which photographs of state treasury ledgers and bank books were introduced. Numerous phases were developed.

After being on the stand all morning, Steele gave instances where Klopff told him "the boss" wanted $500,000 was transferred to "cash on hand" August 30 and transferred back on September 3 in one of the years of the Kephart term. Klopff said Steele got orders for transfers from the boss in the treasury office. On another occasion, he testified, money was transferred from one account to another to help meet payments, but no money was actually transferred. Book transfers, he said, were not deposits.

Much time was spent in discussing with Steele why he made certain entries and how the books were "reconciled" under the methods in vogue at the treasury.

The bulk of the testimony regarding the making of monthly statements was given by Joseph B. Kist, who told how data was taken from books and submitted when compiling to Kephart for the affidavit. It was declared money in transit was not taken into account in making up the statements. Kist insisted some of the book transfers represented actual transfers, movement of cash from one bank to another, but were not by properly numbered drafts. His explanation of large sums in banks and certain transfers was on account of subscriptions to the state road bond fund of $1,000,000 when it was agreed subscribing banks should have use of the money. He declined to accept a statement from a bank showing a reduction of $100,000 as affecting the treasury books, saying he had made the entry by direction of Klopff whom he presumed knew what were the facts.

On cross examination it was brought out Kephart did not make a detailed survey of the monthly statements. It was compiled, but relied upon his men. Transfers made, Kist said, had been by direction of Klopff.

Edgar Powell, another clerk, testified as to making up statements and the drawing of drafts. The latter, he said, were handled on authority of the treasurer.

ROTARIANS HEAR DISCUSSION OF PUBLIC LIBRARY

Miss Edna Krouse, in Charge of Scottdale Institution, Is Speaker.

ITS MERITS SET FORTH

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, June 2.—The Rotary Club held its regular weekly luncheon at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday at noon. A very interesting talk was given by Miss Edna Krouse, librarian of the Scottdale Free Public Library, on "The Library and the Business Man." Among many interesting statements were:

"The librarian in by-gone times was regarded literally as a custodian of books and seemed averse to letting them get away. The modern idea of a library is a collection of the best books to be bought with the money furnished and every book working."

"Those who have the foundation of American libraries work a generation ago adopted a happily-worded motto, 'The Best Books for the Greatest Number at the Least Cost.'"

"Librarians study people as they study books, know their attitudes, interests, paths of approach. In short they must have a knowledge of the psychology of the reading public."

"First, perhaps, we have the fiction readers. Some read for mental relaxation, some to be thrilled, some to keep awake, others to put them to sleep."

"Secondly, we have the school children, whose school work takes up time and ready response give the libraries their greatest opportunity for service."

"Then we have the teachers, engineers, workers of all trades, professional men, business men, etc."

"A library may be looked upon as a public service corporation. Its production is expressed in terms of units of service, the unit being the connection of a reader and a book, as a business has its purchasing, manufacturing, distributing and even selling factors, for the displaying and the tempting to use is essentially a selling proposition."

"The bottom problem of library service is simple. First, to provide essential service, and, second, to provide as much secondary service within the budget as will justify itself on the ground of saving more than it costs."

"Library service consists in connecting the reader and a book, or a reader and information, surely and promptly."

"The people themselves are the owners of the library. They furnish the money for it and should see that they get their share of what it contains for them."

"Business men do not use the library as much as they should. They do not realize the help the library can give them in their own business."

Junior-Senior Banquet

Invitations are out for the annual junior-senior banquet and dance to be held next Tuesday evening, the banquet at the high school building and the dance at Reid Hall.

Six Big Floors and Basement of Aaron Quality Furniture and Homefurnishings to Choose from

Furniture and Furnishings of Known Quality

Aaron's—The June Brides Store

During the 31 years of its existence the Aaron organization has furnished approximately ten thousand homes—which taken collectively would make a city several times the size of Connellsville. That in itself proves that most young couples going to housekeeping in this vicinity look to Aaron's for their Home needs.

There are mighty reasons why Aaron's enjoys this marked preference. The varieties offered are larger than shown in any other store in this section. The merchandise is all of reliable, dependable make. And our prices are always as low as our million-dollar buying-power can make them—insuring worth-while savings.

Top-Icer Refrigerator $12.75

This Refrigerator is large enough for the small family—30-lb. ice capacity. The case is made from select hardwood, finished golden. The ice chamber measures 13 3/4 x 9 1/8 x 9 inches and the provision chamber is white enameled, measures 16 3/4 x 13 in., and has one shelf.

Why it will Pay You to Buy a 'Leonard Cleanable'

The "Leonard Cleanable" is lined with smooth, hard one-piece porcelain with rounded corners—making it absolutely sanitary and easy to keep clean.

Cold, dry air circulation is constantly maintained on highly scientific principles—reaching every point in the provision chamber.

The drain pipe and trap is located where it is easily accessible—but not in the way. It is made of durable, non-rusting material and lifts out easily for cleaning.

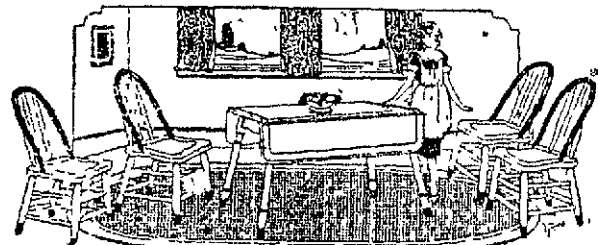

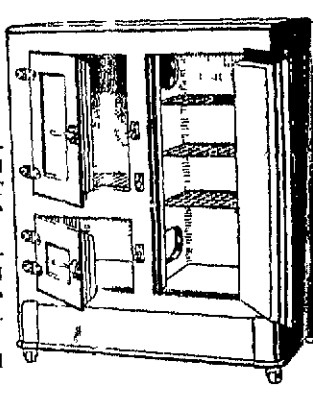

Ten heat-resisting walls of insulation keep the cold air in and the warm air out—insuring economy of ice consumption and utmost efficiency of operation.

The porcelain lining comes clear to the edge of the outside door frame—leaving no wood exposed anywhere on the inside.

The door sill and floor of the provision chamber are even—thus making cleaning a great deal easier than where the floors are sunk below the door sill.

Side-Icer Refrigerator $25

This Refrigerator is exactly as shown here and has an ice capacity of 70 lbs. The case is made of ash—finished golden. The ice chamber measures 12x12 1/2 x 14 inches and the large provision chamber measures 12x12 1/2 x 30 5/8 in. It is white enamel-lined and has three shelves.

BUENA VISTA WOMAN PRESIDENT OF U. P. MISSIONARY BODY

Mrs. E. L. Ralston Elected at Convention Thursday at Mount Pleasant.

SENIORS PRESENT PLAY

Special to The Courier.
MOUNT PLEASANT, June 2.—The Woman's Missionary Society of the Westmoreland Presbytery met at the United Presbyterian Church here yesterday with a morning and afternoon session.

The morning session opened at 10:15 o'clock, with Mrs. E. L. Ralston of Buena Vista, presiding. Mrs. Forrester had charge of the morning devotion. Following the reading of the minutes there was roll call, with 50 delegates and 64 visitors. Reports were then heard from the junior secretary, Miss Ota Gilbert; the literary secretary, Mrs. A. M. Blair; young women's secretary, Mrs. E. G. Forrester; temperance secretary, Mrs. Frank Berry; thank-offering secretary, Mrs. W. H. McPeak; and the association manager, Mrs. R. F. Graham.

The election of officers resulted in the choice of the following: President, Mrs. E. L. Ralston of Buena Vista; first vice-president, Mrs. C. S. Manor of Irwin; second vice-president, Mrs. J. M. Melvin of Elizabeth; third vice-president, Mrs. J. E. Springer of Mount Pleasant; recording secretary, Mrs. Winterburn of Irwin; corresponding secretary, Mrs. M. M. Chaston of Wilmerding; secretary of young women's work, Mrs. E. G. Forrester of East McKeesport; secretary of junior work, Mrs. Nickles of Braddock; thank-offering secretary, Mrs. W. H. McPeak of Braddock; temperance secretary, Mrs. Brown of East McKeesport; literature secretary, Mrs. A. M. Blair of Duquesne; association manager, Mrs. R. F. Graham of McKeesport; treasurer, Mrs. Flora B. Ewing of Duquesne.

Mrs. C. S. Manor of Irwin conducted the quiet hour at the close of the morning service.

The afternoon session opened with devotionals by Mrs. J. E. Springer of Mount Pleasant. This was followed by a business session. Mrs. Flora B. Ewing of Duquesne gave the treasurer's report.

Rev. J. G. Campbell, recently returned from India, spoke during the afternoon. Reports of delegates were heard. Dr. J. H. White of Pittsburgh addressed the convention. Mrs. C. S. Manor closed the meeting with a "quiet hour."

Refreshments were served at the noon hour by the women of the church.

Senior Class Play.

The annual play of the senior class of the high school, "Clarence," was given in the Grand Opera House last evening under the direction of Misses Blanche M. Galley and Kathryn Alwine. In the cast were Helen Friedline, Wilmer Verry, Armand Quier, Charles Severn, Emily Mullin, Irma Christner, Robert Russell, Helen Friedline, Edgar Hobbs and Frank Santora.

Nature Loves Bright Colors.

We see the truth of this statement in the varicolored flowers, the vivid sunsets, the birds of brilliant plumage. But we never see it exemplified more attractively than in the person of a splendidly healthy woman. How does nature paint this health? Why, in the rosy cheeks, the transparent skin, the smooth red lips of such a woman. And she holds it in firm flesh and rounded contours. The ruling woman is deficient in natural coloring, and who does not even appear to advantage in clothes that would set off her more attractive sister. Many women who long for glowing health will find that they, too, can have these charms if they will give a trial to that remedy which brings strength to frail women— Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.—Advertisement.

Ohiopyle

OHIOPYLE, June 4.—A lawn fête was held at the new park at the public square Tuesday night by the Civic Club and the Ohiopyle Band. The new park was lighted up by a home electric light plant. The band played during the afternoon and evening.

In the morning a large crowd, headed by veterans of the Civil War, marched to the cemetery where tribute was paid to their comrades. The cemetery presented a beautiful sight, as it had been cleaned, fences and trees whitewashed and flowers placed on the graves. A free supper was served the veterans by the Civic Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Linderman and children have returned to their home at Confluence after a several days' visit here.

Lawrence Cunningham of Somerville is spending a few days here.

Miss Lena Rafferty has returned to her home at Confluence after a pleasant visit spent here, the guest of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rafferty.

Earle Shumaker and Ethel Suck of Mount Pleasant spent Memorial Day at Ohiopyle.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Dull and son of Indian Creek spent Tuesday at Ohiopyle.

Miss Laura Thorpe was a visitor at Confluence Tuesday.

Mrs. John Dumert of Sewickley is spending a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Cunningham.

A grand stand and pavilion will soon be erected and a name given the new park. The Civic Club is the making of a big thing for Ohiopyle and it will soon be a town of beauty and it will be a town of beauty on the map.

Mrs. Newlin Burnworth and granddaughter have returned home from a week's visit spent at Hyndman and Cumberland, Md.

Mrs. Alex Johnson and son of Smithton are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Johnson.

Miss Elizabeth Rafferty is spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Rafferty at Mount Pleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gifford and son of Confluence spent Tuesday here with relatives.

Independents Meet Tubers Tomorrow; West Penn Wins From Jr. O. U. A. M. Outfit

The Connellsville Independents play their third baseball game of the week tomorrow afternoon when the McKeesport Tubers will be the attraction. The Tubers have been hitting a fast pace and will offer some stiff resistance to the locals but the team has confidence in itself now and it will require a crackerjack aggregation to head it.

Baseball interest continues strong in this region in spite of the fact that there is a game on the sand-lots practically every evening. Fans get a lot of enjoyment out of the Church and City League games but there is always a different air about a clash featuring the Independents on Saturday and for this reason the attendance is good.

There were quite a number of persons who figured baseball would not pay in Connellsville this year because of prevailing conditions but so far the crowds have not fallen much below expectations. One game has been postponed since the opening of the season and with favorable weather each week-end the club will be every bit of a success hoped for.

The complete fidelity of the scenes. For much of this picture was taken in Asheville, N. C. This southern town was transformed into "Canaan" for the filming of the picture, which gave an air of reality to the entire setting, something that is hard to obtain with constructed sets. The nature of Mr. Parkington's story was such that it demands real houses, streets, cars and railroad station. These were all obtained in Asheville, but the camouflage was done so perfectly that the identity of Asheville is completely hidden. It is doubtful if Mr. Meighan ever has done a more difficult characterization on the screen than Joe Loudon, that uncouth and eminently unrespectable doleful of Beaver Beach, who later studies law, with the love of Ariel Tabor and finally becomes mayor of Canaan. Doris Kenyon as Ariel, the tomboy, and Diana Allen as Mamie were most artistic. Monday Tuesday and Wednesday "The Lost Romance" will be presented.

Divorce Is Granted, Three Seek Decrees

A decree in divorce was handed down in court in Uniontown Wednesday and three libels were filed with Prothonotary George M. Rathmell. ## What's the Price of Good Clothes for Men?

The public today will not buy if they believe the article offered is "high priced." Unfortunately, many stores have taken this to mean that people want only cheap merchandise.

That is not our belief. Our customers want fair prices, the lowest prices possible for quality merchandise. But they know we cannot sell good clothing at the same price as cheap clothing.

There is nothing that the public buys in which quality is so important as in clothing. Nor is there anything in which cheap workmanship can be so easily concealed from the casual observer.

Good clothing is made up of three things — good fabrics, good design and good tailoring. Skimping any one of them will cheapen clothing in price, but it will cheapen it far more in quality. You can buy cheap clothing which may look well when you first put it on, it may be made of good fabric, but the real test will come after you wear it—that's when quality will begin to show up.

The difference in the cost between good clothing and poor clothing is small. But the difference in value—in satisfaction to the wearer—is great.

We sell good clothing. The price represents the quality that's in it. The kind of clothing that makes satisfied customers—and that's the kind we want.

Our Society Brand Clothes are the kind that deserve special consideration from any man who thinks well of his appearance. Good style—good tailoring—and good fabrics.

$35 to $50

The price depends on the fabric and trimming—the workmanship is the same.

THE SOISSON.

"R. S. V. P." is a First National picture, with Charles Ray in the leading role. The role fits the star like evening clothes. In the part of Richard Morgan, who is constantly refusing financial assistance from wealthy relatives in order to retain his independence, he has abundant opportunity to display the droll line of comedy for which he has become famous. He is ably assisted in his character by Harry Myers, who, in the role of Benny Fielding, is a bit more starved than the star. From a humorous angle on the struggles of impoverished artists, the picture veers into the highlights of society. Morgan and his chum stage their debut in the exclusive social set on a 50-50 basis, the split involving a division of the various appearances of evening dress, each one contributing about half the outfit. With this as a basis the star evolves situations that are excruciatingly funny and that increase in effect as the result of his own halting style of meeting an embarrassing situation. The picture will also be shown tomorrow.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday "The Lotus Eater" will be presented.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"HELL'S BORDER," a five-act picture filled with thrills, is the feature picture today and tomorrow at this theatre. The picture is interesting throughout and is one that will please all members of the family. The scenes are attractive and the picture presents a cast of well-known screen favorites.

THE ORPHEUM.

"THE CONQUEST OF CANAAN," the feature picture today and tomorrow, is a Paramount production with Thomas Meighan in the stellar role. One of the outstanding features in the production of Booth Tarkington's novel, "The Conquest of Canaan," is city dispensary. Material assistance was given to 20 of these cases. Of the 17 mental hygiene cases, most of them were taken to St. Francis Hospital, Pittsburgh, and placed under care of specialists. The incurable ones were later placed permanently in the institutions at Polk, Laurelton and Homestead.

Employment was secured for 53 persons, 20 men and 33 women. All told 37 social adjustment cases were handled; families reunited, and children cared for while mothers went out and earned the living. Boys were kept out of reformatories by being placed in Christian homes, girls taken from moral court and removed from bad home conditions, placed under good influence, and environment. Twenty-three cases of desertion and non-support, where 50 children suffered from fathers' neglect, were splendidly adjusted for the present but will require most skillful and friendly visits, which only a person trained in the work can do.

Cooperation was established and maintained with 27 societies, such as Children's Service Bureau, Mothers' Assistance, Baltimore Chapter American Red Cross, Children's Aid Society, Pittsburgh, Public Welfare of Columbus, O., United Charities, Chicago; Y. W. C. A., Pittsburgh; Beaver County Chapter American Red Cross, Union Relief Association, Springfield, Mass.; Associated Charities, Washington, D. C.; Associated Charities, Pittsburgh.

Three deaf and dumb persons were fully persuaded to enter schools of their kind and with most marvelous results. One, never having been able to communicate in any possible way with another person, was taken to the school for mutes, Edgewood, Pa., in the fall of 1920. She now writes to her parents and is happier than any other individual in Fayette county. Out door relief has been given to 33 families through the efforts of the Connelville branch. Seven ex-soldier and sailor cases were referred to the Fayette County Chapter.

These have all been difficult tasks but cleverly handled and at the average nominal cost of $1.65 per capita.

The Connelville branch wants to submit this most excellent report and also the financial report to our worthy citizens, who so loyally supported the Red Cross street fair, held September 5, 6 and 7, 1921. With this fund only has the work of the branch been financed. This fund is now exhausted. The Fayette County Chapter is in a position to take over the Connelville branch in a part, refuse to finance further work by the Connelville branch.

The expenditures for the home service work since it began, September, 1919, and which have been paid out of the balance of the street fair fund on hand at that time, have been as follows:

Professional and medical services, operations and drugs	$1,311.01
Gratuities	950.74
On-shedding clothes	702.15
Milk and eggs, etc.	609.10
Transportation	184.43
Coal, fuel and gas	240.73
Nursing	231.10
Laundry	271.32
Rests	327.00
Board meals and lodgings	155.55
Incidentals	71.02
Buses	40.00
Postals	23.10
Funeral	35.00
Total	$5,085.33

Mrs. Reynolds was paid $100 per month until October, 1921, when the branch increased her salary to $125.

The executive committee of the Connelville branch, consisting of T. J. Hooper, chairman; Dr. Katharine Wakefield, vice-chairman; Miss Hawley Clark, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. E. E. Markell, Mrs. Charlie Davidson, Mrs. John L. Gage, Mrs. Josephine Reid, Mrs. A. E. Vanatta, Mrs. W. O. Schoonover, Mrs. J. French, Mrs. S. F. Lake and E. T. Norton, thank all persons, the churches, physicians, surgeons, beneficial orders and individuals who cooperated with us in such a splendid manner.

Government Is Not Responsible for Loss On Requisitioned Coal

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The federal government is not liable for losses which coal companies allege they suffered during the war when compelled to sell coal at prices fixed by the government, the United States Supreme Court has held in a case brought by the Pine Hill Coal Company.

The company contended that the maximum prices fixed by the government were confiscatory and it sought to recover $239,251, claimed to represent the profits it was entitled to receive. The government asserted that if the prices fixed had been confiscatory or its exercise of authority unconstitutional, the company had ample relief by refusing to comply with the law and by injunction. It was also ruled that the government is not liable for losses alleged by coal companies to have been suffered on coal requisitioned by the fuel administrator during the war. The decision was made in a case brought by the Pine Hill Coal Company. The Court of Claims had previously held that the government in the exercise of its war powers had legitimately taken the coal, and was not liable for the losses suffered by the company. The case taken to the Supreme court was considered a test upon which the government's responsibility for large quantities of coal diverted by the fuel administration would be determined.

SENIORS PRODUCE ROUNDS OF FUN IN CLASS DAY EVENT

with 16 students, one visitor and a school committee, was good. The playlet was composed by the cast Miss Margaret Brindlinger was the visitor, and on the school committee a quartet of "squeaky old ladies" were Neil Davis, Wanda Belghley, Dicie Nicholson and Marie Hawkins. The students were Helen Demko, Ruth Brown, Sara Williams, Anna Runkel, Nina Tawno, Donald Yoder, Helen Beresky, Genevieve Constantine, Emily Loring, Mildred Herwick, Elizabeth Hfner, Ethel Newcomer, Gladys Vance, Aletta Peters, Josephine Richey and Stuart Fenstermacher.

Miss Thelma Christy gave a piano solo which was very good. Miss Christy has done much playing for agents at the High School and she topped all her previous efforts last night.

Miss Cora Charlesworth, with Miss Christy as accompanist, contributed a beautiful vocal solo.

Brown Higbee, speaking for the senior class, presented the "key of knowledge" to the juniors and urged that they bend their greatest efforts to maintain the honor and dignity of the senior class. The key was received by Alfred Williamson of the junior class.

The exercises ended with the singing of the class song by the entire group of seniors. This song was written by Miss Alice Adams, a member of the class, and the music composed by Carl T. Anstine, instructor of music at the High School.

Miss Mary E. Powers was the director-in-chief of the exercises and she had as her assistants, Misses Maud Hunt, Alice Childs and Frances Nanna. All members of the faculty. These young women had quite a task on their hands in rehearsing the four-score students and assigning parts to all of them. All the ideas were original and the parts well written.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., June 2.—During the year of 1933 dues totaling $661,298.76 and checkweighmen's wages in the amount of $121,781.18 making a total of $783,079.94 was checked off for the United Mine Workers of America from the union miners in the Fairmont field, last year. 11,175 loaders and 7,298 day men were employed in the union mines. The average amount checked off from each man was $42.30.

Miners in the Wilsonburg district near Clarksburg paid the heaviest check off. Loaders paid $62 in dues and checkweighmen's wages, while day men were each assessed $48 in dues.

The Fairmont field is partially unionized. All the union mines have been idle since March 31 last although many have not operated since December, 1933. The non-union mines are active. The Fairmont or northern West Virginia field is comprised of 12 counties in the northern part of the state.

PLANNED FOR SHALLOW LOT

Seven Big Comfortable Rooms and Living Porch—Every Consideration Given to Comfort and Convenience

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF CHARGE on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building for the town of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor of the "Herald" and as a writer without doubt the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, 38 1/2 W. 1st St., Chicago, Ill. and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

In five cities at the present time there are five Own Your Own Home expositions going on simultaneously. That only lives a bit of the bit of that is centered in this subject. Everyone you meet is talking home—mostly because of the increase in rents. People have held off building their own homes because they figured that the next May 1 would see a decline but change has taken place and now they are not going to wait any longer. These expositions are through with people in search of ideas. They want to see how a home looks from the outside, how it appears on the inside, how they are using in bathrooms, how they are building kitchens and a thousand and one other things that make the home a real place in which to live.

Perhaps you are one of the many who will be unable to attend one of these expositions. That does not necessarily mean however that you cannot get the same information and some of the inspiration that these other folks are getting. If you are interested in a home of your own you will more than likely get some real ideas from the splendid design shown here. It embodies the latest in construction, the most recent developments in household convenience. It is built to be a real home and after all that is the test. It may not be just what you want but then again it will give you some tangible ideas that will aid you in finding the one you want.

There is no question about the comfort of this home. As for construction, it is built to last. To the average man the building of a home is one of his biggest jobs during his entire lifetime and he wants it to last. This house is built of brick and stucco, a very pleasing combination. The roof is gable, rather steep with two attic roof dormers on each side.

With the entrance and first floor set on practically the ground level this house offers a particularly interesting appearance and reflects a definite impression of hospitality. The entrance porch is composed of the Colonial although built on more square modern lines. A large glass paneled door opens the way into a reception hall running straight back through the house to the rear. From here rises the stairs to the floor above and from this once hall are the entrances to the living room, dining room and kitchen.

A real surprise and treat awaits the visitor to the living room. A great informal room of 15 feet 6 inches by 25 feet 6 inches. In the center of the outside wall facing the living porch, is a large double door leading to the side by double French doors opening out on the porch. The porch which is 10 feet 6 inches wide has been secured in. During the winter the living room can be closed in and the use of the space is almost doubled. The year-around high top living room is 17 feet 6 inches wide and 10 feet 6 inches deep.

Steping across the hall you find yourself in a large well-lighted dining room, 15 feet 6 inches by 14 feet 6 inches. In a bright room, conveniently situated with regard to the kitchen and other rooms. After all the relation of the dining room and kitchen is one of the most important things to the housewife. If she is not fortunate enough to be able to have a maid and many would rather do their own work she will soon realize the importance of the arrangement of these two rooms.

Every foot of space is made good use of. The day room is 17 feet 6 inches by 10 feet 6 inches and at the same time has a fireplace. In this room the kitchen is small, 10 feet 6 inches by 10 feet 6 inches, but it is well equipped with all the modern conveniences. The kitchen is small, 10 feet 6 inches by 10 feet 6 inches, but it is well equipped with all the modern conveniences.

Passing to the floor above we find four bedrooms 15 feet 6 inches by 11 feet 6 inches each. With windows on two sides they are well supplied with fresh air and the sleepers are assured of easy breathing during the night when the windows are open. Ventilation in bedroom is of vital importance to every member of the family.

In case more sleeping quarters are needed the attic can be quickly and economically converted into at least two small bedrooms.

This house is suitable for any location, or any sized plot but it will also be found very useful in a shallow lot which is quite frequent in a suburb. It is especially adaptable for a short wide lot.

The dimensions are 40 feet 6 inches by 28 feet.

Keeps the World Young

The normal child is an investigator, an explorer. He is curious, inquisitive. He must find out for himself. He is hungry for life and experience, and is not satisfied merely to accept the thrashed-out story of social and traditional knowledge. Elders are often apprehensive because of this trait of youth. But this exploring hunger born anew with each generation is after all, what keeps the world young, interesting and open to progress. So if the elder cannot hand down all of his treasures of experience to his children perhaps it would be better for him to live long enough himself to be wise.—Arkansas Thruout Cut

SAYS HE'D GO A HUNDRED MILES TO GET TANLAC

North Wales Man Gains 15 Pounds and Can Eat Anything on the Table Since His Dyspepsia Was Overcome.

"Knowing what I do about Tanlac since trying it out, I would go a hundred miles for it rather than be without it. It was the emphatic statement recently made by Claude Hanson, a well known electrician living at North Wales, Montgomery county, Pa.

Before taking this medicine I had stomach trouble and scarcely ate enough to keep me going. I was so run down and played-out that I simply had to drag myself through the day. The gas on my stomach caused heart palpitation, shortness of breath and dizziness and I also suffered with numerous pains through my body.

Tanlac has done away with all these troubles and has built me up fifteen pounds in weight besides. I am just the same as a new man and that is my reason for being so strong for Tanlac.

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists—Advertisement.

A MATTER OF FRANCHISE

1932 by McClure Newspaper Syndicate. BILL, anyhow, he's got a fine telephone disposition," insisted the switchboard girl, glancing across the lobby in where tall, black-haired and blue-eyed John Ames stood, the picture of discontent.

"I'd rather have a grouchy chat pays his bills," responded the clerk, who had grown gray-haired on suspicion. "His week was up yesterday morning."

"They both looked speculative," Ames said, who was at that moment, moodily engaged in hating the hotel, the town, and the train which brought him to it. The girl dashed her inspection first, and, with a thoroughly satisfied manner, fumbled in her purse and produced a quarter which she laid on the corner of the desk.

"Set you the two bits he pays his bill tonight," she offered.

The clerk, studying John Ames in an entirely new light, pushed back the coin.

"He don't he'll get a call," he laughed.

As it happened, to their thought, the tall young man suddenly turned and strode across to the desk. The telephone girl, who was a plain blonde, watched him furtively out of the corners of her eyes.

"What time can I get a train for Connaville?" asked Ames in a habitually pleasant voice.

The clerk was instantly attentive.

"Three times he tried to talk before and dollars!"

He made it—"Two—Two—Two Thousand—"

He gasped.

and the lines which ran from the corners of his mouth and pinched his cheeks, but some of their grimaces, his confidence was restored, and he was quite prepared to like John Ames.

"There isn't a good one until 4:15 a. m.," he replied, glancing at the clock. "The 8:30 is just about leaving the depot, unless it's late," and he touched the bell for the clerk.

"What do you know about No. 12, Joe?" asked the clerk.

"On time, sir," reported Joe in a voice of many dimensions.

Ames gave the lobby one more glance, and frowned. There was not an interesting face in sight. Three iron-countenanced ladies came in and crossed the parlor. They dashed with diamonds and rustled with silk, and left an aggravating stream of heavy perfume in their wake.

"What time can I get a train for Lynchtown?" Ames inquired, and catching the eye of the telephone girl, gave her a friendly nod.

Once more the clerk looked puzzled. Ames had been with them over a week, and no one knew why. He had asked many questions, but none of them hung together. Lynchtown was in exactly the opposite direction from Connaville.

"Nine-fifteen, sir," offered Joe. "Shall I bring down your luggage?"

"I think so," replied Ames with indifference. "Get me a ticket and a lower berth," he leaned over to the cashier's window. "The bill for me," he requested.

The cashier cast on him one inquiring glance and slowly went about making up the bill. The telephone girl leaned over to the grim-checked clerk.

"Fixer, you wouldn't bet," she chided him.

"Oh, I knew he was all right," declared the clerk.

A gentleman and two ladies stepped up to the desk. The man, who was in evening dress, was a decidedly prosperous-looking chap, young and vigorous in spite of his iron-gray hair, wore a plump mustache and was quite brusque of manner.

"I ordered a box for the Grand to be delivered here," he announced to the clerk.

"I don't think they've come yet, Mr. Dennison," returned the clerk, with a bow to the ladies. "Are you going to dine with us?"

"Yes," said Dennison, not gruffly, but in the manner of a man who is paid to thrash people's appointments.

"I'll look up the tickets for you, and send them in to you as soon as they come," offered the clerk.

"Thanks," accepted Dennison, and rejoined the ladies.

Ames went over to the clock as soon as the group had left the desk.

"I haven't seen those people before," he observed, his eyes straying again to the retreating figure of the girl.

"Do they live here?"

"That's Tom Dennison of the Midstate Interurban line,"

"And family, I suppose," guessed Ames.

"Yes, and daughter," the clerk informed him.

"The Midstate Interurban line," speculated Ames. "They've been trying to get an entrance in Plainburg, haven't they?"

two years," smiled the clerk. "The local traction company, however, have the town tied up. They're building some interurban lines of their own. The traction company is virtually owned and operated by our business little politicians."

"I see," responded Ames, and was thoughtful for a moment, then he worked over to the cashier's window. "I'll take my bill to yesterday morning," he directed. "Will you please tell the head porter not to put that transportation?" He went back to the clerk, and he had lost all his highest indifference. "Will you kindly see if you can secure me a good ticket for the Grand tonight?" he requested.

CHAPTER II

Tom Dennison's door slammed like the bursting of an auto tire, and there came out a man so tall that he seemed almost to be stoop-shouldered from passing through low doorways.

The boy to whom Ames had given his card, took it in to the president's office of the Midstate Interurban, and came out again in a hurry.

"He can't see you today," reported the boy.

Ames smiled, and, taking another card, wrote, beneath his name, the single word "franchise."

The boy looked at the card doubtfully.

"I don't think I had better bother Mr. Dennison any more just now," he speculated, with an apprehensive glance at the door.

"You'll be perfectly safe," Ames reassured him. "There's fifty cents. If you get knocked out I'll give you a dollar."

The boy slipped the half-dollar into his pocket and grinned.

"He'll give you three minutes," said the boy, and Ames went in.

He found Dennison standing at a window, staring out at a clear, hot day, the full-blooded Dennison's face and temples and neck were red; also his hand was trembling slightly.

"I understand you want an interurban entrance and terminal station in Plainburg," he began.

Dennison almost balked.

"Yes."

"I had intended to leave the city last night, but I took a notion to stay over and help you get your franchise," resumed Ames pleasantly.

Dennison took the card out of his mouth, and regarded Ames fixedly for a moment.

"How?"

"I don't know yet," returned Ames. "I haven't given that detail any thought."

Dennison laughed, entirely without mirth, and, rising nervously, stalked back to the window.

"That'll be about all," he snapped. "I've kept an office in town for two years, trying to get that franchise."

"I don't mind your being aggravated," remarked Ames, unruffled. "You've been trying two years to secure this franchise, and a stranger speaks of it with utter indifference, as if it were a trivial matter; which, after all, it probably is. These things are usually quite simple."

Again Dennison laughed that mirthless laugh.

"Just walk in here tomorrow with a feasible plan for me to bring my interurban lines into this city, and I'll give you ten thousand dollars," he offered.

Ames reflected a moment.

"Make it forty-eight hours and I'll take you," he bargained.

"All right, forty-eight hours," agreed Dennison.

"Now tell me the exact status of affairs," he requested.

Dennison returned to his desk slowly, studied Ames a moment in silence, and sat down.

"Did you see the man who went out just now?" he demanded, and again his temples reddened.

Ames nodded his head and smiled.

"Well, that was Bill Cracken," went on Dennison, involuntarily twitting the muscles of his hand. "He's the president of the local traction company, the political boss of the town, and a—"

"Perfect!" he also came in to tell me how to get a franchise."

"I can probably guess it," observed Ames. "He wanted a big block of stock, control of the Midstate, and your heart's blood."

"Just about," agreed Dennison, somewhat mollified with this ready comprehension. "That's what he wants if we come in. If we don't, he threatens to extend his own lines to parallel ours and since he can get into the city and we can't it doesn't look good for the Midstate."

Ames rose.

hours is enough, but I'll try it," he started. "So far, I'm only proceeding on the assumption that there's always a way. You haven't had a city hall fire in recent years, have you?"

"No," returned Dennison, looking at him curiously.

"Thanks," said Ames. "By the way, if I should show you that feasible plan for entering the city, I'm going to ask you a couple of months' employment in addition to that bonus you were kind enough to offer."

"Young man," declared Dennison, looking over his finger, "if you succeed in this fool proposition, you may write your own ticket."

CHAPTER III

The following night at ten o'clock, Tom Dennison's butler came into the library with the information that John Ames was on the phone.

"Is this Mr. Dennison?" drawled the voice of Ames.

"Yes."

"Two found Jerry Slammer."

"Who's Jerry Slammer?" asked Dennison.

"It's a man you want to see immediately," was the guarded answer. "Drive down at once to 'The Pavilion' saloon, on the corner of Fourth street and Smith alley. Bring your check-book with you."

"Is it about that franchise?" he guessed, surmising that Ames was talking from a place where he might easily be overheard.

"Yes; hurry!"

Again there was a moment of hesitation.

"I'll be right down," promised Dennison, and, opening the drawer of his library table, he slipped a checkbook in his pocket.

"The Pavilion" saloon was a tumble-down grog shop, with a row of barrels stacked against one wall, and a row of lockers leaning against the barrels.

A puff of man with a neck which started to expand at his ears, was behind the bar, and he was so fat about the middle that his accumulation of grease seemed to have pushed his eyebrows up, so that he had the effect of perpetually staring, though his eyes were half closed. Both the bartender and his customers seemed a shade resentful at the intrusion of this second well-dressed stranger of the evening, but they forgave him, more or less, when he went back to the corner table and sat down with a old Jerry Slammer and the young swell who had inquired for a stage coach driver.

"This is the man I telephoned you about," announced Ames, with a pleasant smile at the purple-faced old reprobate with whom he sat. "This is Jerry Slammer, and I am told he is the best stage coach driver in this part of the state."

"Is that so?" observed Dennison, hiding his time, and trying not to look his wonder.

"I guess I'm about the only one that's left," mouthed old Jerry, whose swollen face was marked with a thousand little cross-rosed veins.

The bartender came across inquiringly, and cast down at old Jerry a particularly acid stare.

"A little of the same, I think," ordered Ames, by whose side sat a small bottle. "Name for you, Mr. Slammer?"

Old Jerry passed up his empty glass with alacrity.

"I've ordered this bottle, Tom," suggested Ames. "I also recommend that you drink it out of the bottle."

"Mr. Slammer has had years of experience," went on Ames, looking speculatively into Dennison's eyes. "He was the last driver on the old Housatonic line. He was worth money in those days."

"I bet I was!" asserted Jerry, a watery look coming into his bleary old eyes. "I own of the stage company at the last. I saved my money and bought stock, and I then, two years after the horse car, came in they offered it to me, cheap, and I bought up the whole company."

"They sure stung Jerry," exulted the bartender. "The stage didn't run two years longer. The last year there was only one stage, and Jerry drove that."

"Well, I owned the company," insisted Jerry, reaching greedily for his scorpion-like liquor.

"Mr. Slammer had quite a lot of political influence in those days," supplemented Ames again looking speculatively into the eyes of Dennison. "He had a right of way over his route, and he could do almost anything he liked."

"I bet I could!" boasted Jerry. "I had it in my right of way that I could run any kind of carriage I wanted to—stage, wagon, loggy, anything—or I could tear up the street and fix it to suit myself. All the city officials had fear of me."

"Drift was 'ban in his infancy," laughed Ames. "Mr. Slammer still owns all this stock in that company."

Jerry's chest sank in.

"Much good it does me," he protested. "Old Tim Warren has it in his grip now. He's got me three dollars' worth of drinks on it, and I never paid him back. He's a fish-bellied man."

"You have quite a collection of rare old papers like that, Tom," Ames finally said. "Doesn't he interest you?"

"Yes, he's a man," agreed Dennison, catching his cue.

"I don't know as Tab'll let me have 'em without the three dollars," speculated Jerry.

"There was another silence."

"I'll lead you the three dollars," he finally offered Ames, producing a ten-dollar bill.

Jerry's eyes glittered at the sight of the money. He took it, rose painfully, and shuffled over to the bar.

"Tab, I think I'll pay off my score and take my stock," he announced gravely, dropping the ten-dollar bill on the bar.

"Tab," said Tab, with a grin at the table in the corner, and, fishing a stub of a lead pencil from his vest pocket, he began figuring on the back of an old envelope.

"That old franchise has expired," questioned Dennison.

"It has thirty days yet to run," Ames told him. "It's last term was for twenty-five years, and it is renewable for a like period, on the payment of five thousand dollars to the city. If the line is in operation and carrying passengers on the day of expiration,"

Dennison sternly resisted an impulse to whomp, but he did not even glance at the old John Ames.

"Here Come the Elephants!"

Do you remember how you used to be on the job bright and early to see the circus parade? Remember how you thrilled at the lions, tigers, and the big, lumbering elephants passed in review? How the horses, the blare of the bands, the antics of the clowns, and the glitter of it all inspired you with a fervid determination to see the real show—the big performance in the tent?

You didn't realize it then, but you were getting a lot out of an attractive advertisement.

Perhaps you don't realize it now, but other advertisements, just as attractive, just as interesting and far more valuable to you, parade daily before you in the columns of this paper.

The merchants and makers of everything you want or need, here display before you their most attractive wares. It is truly "the greatest show on earth."

The whole purpose of any advertisement is to excite your curiosity, gain your interest, arouse your desire; to tell you something you don't know; to remind you of something you have forgotten; to convince you of something over which you have been hesitating.

In short, the purpose of an advertisement is, in one way or another, to make you happier.

Novel Knitted Swimming Suit

Dame Fashion has been prompted in decreasing the simple and practical bathing suit by the fact that so many women, the country over, have become devotees of the art of swimming. Since the sport has become so popular, there is little room left for the cumbersome bathing outfit of yesterday. The comfortable form fitting suit, cut wide at the shoulder to insure freedom of arm movement, is the order of the day.

While the fashionable set experimented with bathing suits of woven materials, during the past Palm Beach season, this was but a foretaste of things, that soon gave way to the welcome return of the knitted suit. The new knitted and non-shrinking qualities of knitted material now leave the knitted bathing suit unchallenged in its field.

In addition to suits of one color, some of which bear embroidery varying from pure geometrical designs to conventional sea subjects, there are two-color effects. Here we have a most attractive example, made of pure worsted. The skirt is lined and allows for fullness. The upper part and the knickers are of a different color and may be had in cardinal, Kelly green or sand combination.

Third Week of Improvement Shows a Lighter But Still Substantial Gain in Output

Recovery Taking Place at Frick Plants Slowly but Gradually.

MERCHANTS STAND STILL

Make No Gains and Sustain No Losses: Total Production Up to 50,180 Tons, Highest Since Third Week of Strike; 50% Larger Than in 1921.

From The Weekly Courier.

In the third of the successive weeks during which the production of coke has increased the rate of gain was less than in either of the weeks immediately preceding, but it was sufficiently substantial to show that very definite forward progress is being made. The recovery of Ascension Day, which many mine and coke workers are careful to observe, accounted in part for the increase being smaller than during the second week of the improvement period. Further, many of the ovens recently fired up had not come into full production hence the proportion of the increase to total production fell behind that of the preceding week. The total was the largest since the third week of the strike and 56 per cent heavier than a year ago.

If the region were running anything like full capacity a weekly gain of 1,700 tons, registered last week, or even 3,230 tons registered the week before, would be insignificant, but when compared with the total tonnage, and taking into account the circumstances attending coke production at this time, a smaller gain than 1,700 tons would be a factor of importance.

That the total output has risen from 52,000 during the week of May 6 to 50,180 tons last week, a gain of 6,930 tons since the turn came in the tide, is eloquent of the fact that the region is making recovery by easy stages instead of by the predicted "stampede" of workers to return to their jobs. If weekly additions being made in the number of plants and ovens restored to partial operation, and increases at those already running, are continued as seems probable, students of the situation will be still more inclined to the view that a close approach to the pre-strike rate of production will come about in due course by individual action of the workers and without waiting for a cue to break ranks in a body.

At any rate, such is the assumption upon which the operators are proceeding. From day to day their working forces are being augmented by a few men, never in large numbers on any given day, but the growth is gradual and, with a few exceptions, has proven to be permanent. If the menace of loss of bodily harm from the more radical and determined strikers were removed, there would be no doubt be applications for jobs in excess of the need to start all idle plants and to bring others up to 100 per cent production.

The course of production and the weekly change from April 1 to date is shown in the following:

Week Ending	Production	Decrease	Gain
April 1	119,950
April 8	134,420	15,470
April 15	98,510	35,910
April 22	94,980	33,530
April 29	84,230	10,750
May 6	52,330	2,900
May 13	54,650		2,320
May 20	57,120		2,470
May 27	50,180		1,700

Totals: 725,310 37,750 6,930

Comparison with the corresponding period of last year when the industrial depression was causing weekly curtailment in production by all coke makers, is presented herewith:

Week Ending	Production	Decrease	Gain
April 1	111,904	19,950	4,712
April 8	112,881	15,420	3,178
April 15	98,510	4,412	47,220

April 29	4,820	64,230	4,536
May 6	4,230	64,230	2,872
May 13	5,130	64,180	3,768
May 20	5,368	57,480	3,824
May 27	5,810	51,330	3,596

Totals: 725,310 37,750 6,930

Ovens in blast have exceeded the weekly average of last year by 3,548. Average weekly production is 34,998 tons, or 77 per cent, greater than a year ago.

The active plant list, has been brought up to 32, or 51.3 per cent, by the additional firings by the H. C. Frick Coke Company, the condition of plants at various periods having been as follows:

Week Ending	In Blast	Out of Blast	Total
April 1	32	28	60
April 8	32	28	60
April 15	32	28	60
April 22	32	28	60

May 6	32	28	60
May 13	32	28	60
May 20	32	28	60
May 27	32	28	60

A gain of 178 in the number of ovens in blast last week advanced the active list to 5,548 on May 27, or 46.3 per cent of those in operation April 1. Altogether 1,175 ovens have been restored to activity since the strike began. Those in blast on April 1 and subsequent dates are shown below:

Week Ending	In Blast	Out of Blast	Total
April 1	32	28	60
April 8	32	28	60
April 15	32	28	60
April 22	32	28	60

May 6	32	28	60
May 13	32	28	60
May 20	32	28	60
May 27	32	28	60

Production being very largely confined to the Connelville district, and to the Frick operations, the percentages remain at about 75 per cent by the former and 91 per cent by the latter. At various dates production by districts has been:

Week Ending	Production	Decrease	Gain
April 1	119,950
April 8	134,420	15,470
April 15	98,510	35,910

May 13	54,650		2,320
May 20	57,120		2,470
May 27	50,180		1,700

Being brought three additional plants. Mammoth, Phillips and York Run, all made idle by the strike, and 178 ovens into blast last week, the Frick company has 21 coking plants in operation out of the 28 in production on April 1, exclusive of those engaged in loading raw coal. The progress made by this company to 75 per cent of its plants and 68.3 per cent of its ovens in running is shown by the following when compared with the record of the independent producers:

By the 82 per cent increase, in the combined shipments of coal and coke last week was the largest during any single week of the strike to date. The week preceding it was five per cent. During the three weeks ending May 13 the gain had averaged four per cent per week. Upwards of 2,000 tons of stock coke were shipped out last week in addition to the week's production.

The estimated production during the week ending Saturday, May 27, was 50,180 tons, divided between the two districts as follows: Connelville, 54,030, an increase of 1,439 tons; Lower Connelville, 5,150, an increase of 270 tons, or a total increase of 1,709 tons as compared with an increase of 3,230 tons during the previous week.
